Adaptive retrieval research paper

This study evaluates retrieval augmented generation for scientific question answering. The system uses semantic chunking, multi-model embeddings, and page-level provenance.

The technical method compares dense retrieval with keyword fallback and routes technical questions to an embedding model selected by query intent. Evaluation measures retrieval relevance, answer faithfulness, and citation coverage across research domains.